

GASCalc™ 5.0

Licensing Options

The GASCalc™ 5.0 software is the latest release of our popular suite of analytical tools specifically developed to aid in the design and operation of natural gas distribution, gathering, transmission, plant, and fuel piping systems. It includes routines for calculating a variety of stress, flow, and pressure values for devices and piping associated with virtually any piping application that transports or delivers natural gas. Its wide range of features provide the ability to investigate piping problems from the well head to the burner tip.

The software is available in the following licensing configurations.

LICENSE OPTIONS
LICENSE TYPE	DESCRIPTION
Demonstration	A full featured, time limited version of the software. Available for download from our website www.b3pe.com .
Evaluation	A full featured, extended time limited version of the software. Available upon request for approved Users.
Single User License	Provides full access for a single User in a stand alone or concurrent “network” installation. With the exception of the Enterprise and Corporate Licenses, one Single User License is required for each concurrent or simultaneous User.
Enterprise License	Provides full access for an unlimited number of Users in a stand alone, “network”, or combination installation for a single operating company. For example, if a number of operating companies are owned by a single holding company, with the exception of the Corporate License, one Enterprise License is required for each operating company. This license is intended for a single operating company with multiple Users. The Enterprise License is more cost effective than multiple Single User Licenses when more than seven (7) Users will be using the software in a single operating company.
Corporate License	Provides full access for an unlimited number of Users in a stand alone, “network”, or combination installation at unlimited locations. This license is intended for use by multiple operating companies owned by a single holding company. The licensee is the holding company. The Corporate License is more cost effective than multiple Enterprise Licenses when more than three (3) operating companies will be using the software.

The GASCalc™ software is distributed by way of electronic download. The software requires a computer configured to run Windows™ XP or newer. The terms of the Enterprise and Corporate licenses allow the User to make multiple copies of the installation software and documentation, and to allow the software to be installed on multiple machines as defined by the limitations of the license.

Purchase of a license provides authority for perpetual use of the software, to the extent that the software will operate unmodified on future operating systems. An annual maintenance fee may be applied for custom installations or in cases where a non-standard license agreement is used, otherwise no annual maintenance fee is required. Updates to the software are available for download at no additional charge from our website. Technical support on the use of the software is provided by way of telephone or email communication at no additional fee.
